

Set-up and Heist Information: The Protagonists

I designed this DLC with two characters in mind not including the players. The two characters can have any kind of relationship, but I think a familial relationship is more easily understood. Familial relationships span across many cultures regardless of a country's political system. Also, since I'm incorporating certain inspirations from various Fast and Furious movies, I think it is also wise to include the concept of family because the Fast and Furious movies are about family, among other things.

In designing this DLC, I used two brothers as the protagonists. The protagonists can also be a brother and sister pair, or it can also be two sisters. For my description of the entire DLC, I'll use the two brothers as the protagonists.

Brother1 is a street racer, and a gifted mechanic. He has been in and out of juvenile detention centers his entire life, and he eventually moved up to doing time in county jails. Although Brother1 has done time in jail, he has not done crimes so serious that they warrant prison time. However, with laws in San Andreas getting stricter every day, Brother1 will eventually be sent to prison if he is arrested one more. His fingerprints have been found in various high-end robberies although law enforcement hasn't been able to pin him to any crimes because his alibis always check out.

Brother1 has been recently arrested, and his alibi has agreed to turn in evidence against him. If Brother1 makes it to the county jail for processing, he will eventually be sent to prison for a long time.

Brother1 has broken virtually every driving law in the books. The only driving laws he hasn't broken are the one that haven't been written down by lawmakers. Why haven't these laws been written down? Because they don't exist. However, when these laws eventually exist, Brother1 will violate them.

Brother1 flunked his senior year of high school. He finished his high school education at an adult school. Instead of receiving a high school diploma, however, he received a GED.

Brother1 is a well-known street racer. He loves fast cars, fast girls, tattoos, and he'll do anything for a perfect quarter mile—including selling his own grandma.

Brother2 is an engineer, and weapons designer. He has worked for various government agencies in support of military, and law enforcement operations around the world. He has a clean record. He was a straight A student all throughout his academic career, and he has never missed a day of class. He has always been the first student inside the class when the bell rings, and he has always been the last student to leave class when it's time to go home.

Brother2 has never spent a day of his life in jail. Has never been ticketed by the police, not even for jaywalking.

Brother2 also tutors engineering students at various local universities. He also volunteers twice a month to help at the local homeless shelter. He goes to church on Sundays, and he walks the neighbor's dog every chance he gets.
